

Preserving History, Saving Places:

A workshop on historic architecture, preservation commissions and the law

This one-day program is designed to highlight the work of those who identify, record, conserve, and interpret the history, culture, and architectural heritage of communities in the state and western region; to explain the decision making processes of historic preservation commissions; and to clarify the roles, responsibilities and legal obligations of commissions in North Carolina.

When & Where?

Wednesday, June 20, 2012, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. (registration opens at 9:00 a.m.) in the Auditorium of the North Carolina Arboretum: <http://www.ncarboretum.org/plan-a-visit/hours-directions/>

Who Should Attend?

Local officials, historic preservation commission members, volunteers, grassroots organizations, planners and planning staff and others involved in historic preservation

Why Should You Attend?

- ✚ To learn more about the historic architecture of the region and state
- ✚ To appreciate the work of historic preservation boards and commissions
- ✚ To understand the legal requirements that guide historic preservation commissions

The workshop will be led by UNC School of Government faculty Rich Ducker, State Historic Preservation Office restoration specialist Jennifer Cathey, and Asheville-Buncombe Historic Preservation Commission members Ashley Black, Nan Chase and David Nutter.

The program is co-sponsored by the UNC School of Government, the NC Division of Community Planning, Asheville office; the Asheville office of the State Historic Preservation Office; Preservation North Carolina; and the Local Government Training Program in Political Science & Public Affairs at Western Carolina University.

The cost of the program is $20, which includes lunch and materials. To register, click on the link below. To finalize your registration, when prompted click the “Continue Unregistered” button.

For an agenda, contact LGTP director Vickey Wade at (828) 227-3442 or vwade@wcu.edu.

Register online at the link below until Friday June 15, 2012.

https://wcupg.wcu.edu/C20252_ustores/web/product_detail.jsp?PRODUCTID=39&SINGLESTORE=true